occupied wall is a challenge to community of Portland and its elected leadership. Where should our resources go?
Should we build walls or public forums?
Will walls protect us or will collective safety occur through public engagement and dialogue about our differences and similarities?

This piece is yours to make that determination.
Leave it as is...
or disassemble and reassemble the blocks and slabs into couches (three blocks & a slab)
individual chairs (a block & a slab)
or easels (an upside down block & a slab) to declare your ideas.

groundrules:
1. please keep the blocks and slabs in the plaza
2. respect the piece as a possession of the entire community.
3. consider this as an experiment with your elected leadership. if you take care of this opportunity, they may have the courage to utilize our resources for amenities and public spaces that enrich and join us as a community.
